Since then, College for Appraisers has neither renewed its approval to operate nor demonstrated eligibility for exemption from the provisions of the California Private Postsecondary Education Act. In addition, College for Appraisers is still advertising antique appraising classes with a tuition cost of $150-$4,150, via their institution website, <http://www.cfacollege.org/>, as well as on Facebook, without a current approval from the Bureau. Furthermore, during a Bureau field investigation on September 10, 2015, Bureau staff verified College for Appraisers was open and advertising classes via their brochures, inside King Richard's Antique Center in Whittier, CA.

BACKGROUND

An internal tip was submitted to the Bureau's Complaints & Investigations Unit on January 21, 2014 due to College for Appraisers failing to submit documentation in accordance with the Bureau's desk compliance inspection process, and advertising a different operating address, 12301 Whittier Blvd. Whittier, CA 90602, from the physical institution address on file with the Bureau, 5573 Market Place, Cypress, CA 90630.

On December 31, 2014, Bureau staff sent two letters to College for Appraisers notifying the school that it is operating without the Bureau's approval; one to the institution's mailing address, 12301 Whittier Blvd., Whittier, CA 90602, and one to the institution's physical location, 5573 Market Place, Cypress, CA 90630. College for Appraisers did not respond to either letter.

On September 8, 2015, Bureau staff verified that College for Appraisers was still advertising classes via their institution website, <http://www.cfacollege.org/>, as well as on Facebook.

On September 10, 2015, Bureau staff drove by the advertised institution address, 12301 E. Whittier Blvd., Whittier, CA 90602, and verified College for Appraisers was open and advertising classes via their brochures, inside King Richard's Antiques Center in Whittier, CA.

As of May 4, 2016, College for Appraisers has not renewed their approval to operate after it expired on January 31, 2014, and has not demonstrated eligibility for exemption from the provisions of the California Private Postsecondary Education Act. In addition, the institution is offering antique appraising classes with a tuition cost of $150-$4,150, and is still advertising classes via their institution website, <http://www.cfacollege.org/>, as well as on Facebook. This is a violation of the California Education Code section 94886.
